

Walsh College is serious business. A college is all about its students and helping them develop the tools to succeed. Walsh College students know better than most what they need, and they get it. Above all, Walsh College students want to learn about business. Any and all aspects of the college experience which don't help them learn about business are considered, well, unnecessary. They want smaller classes, so they can talk to their professors easily and readily. They want the business skills that can put them ahead of the pack and enable them to climb a rung or two or more on the corporate ladder. They want to be taught by people who live and breathe the business world every day. And they are, by CEOs, CFOs, CMOs, partners in law firms, CPA firms and other positions of prestige who share their stories and business-world insight as Walsh professors. Walsh students take pride in learning the ropes at the state's largest graduate business school, where they can rub elbows with many like-minded students, including the largest group of MBA candidates of any in Michigan. And, they all want to be able to work while they go to school, out of sheer necessity. The luxury of putting their career on hold while they go back to school isn't an option. But all this serious talk doesn't mean the Walsh College experience isn't enjoyable. It is, but in a decidedly no-nonsense way. Serious students. A college serious about helping them. Perfect match.
