

Locating an article that you previously found in ProQuest ABI/Inform Complete.

From the Advanced Search screen, type the title of the article; then select Document title-TI from the drop-down menu.

The screenshot shows the ProQuest Advanced Search page. The search bar contains the text "ford mustang is best selling sports coupe globally". Below the search bar, there are two callout boxes. The first callout box, located above the search bar, contains the text "Enter the article title if you know it or as much as you know" and has an arrow pointing to the search bar. The second callout box, located to the right of the search bar, contains the text "Select Document title from the drop-down list" and has an arrow pointing to the "Document title - TI" dropdown menu. Below the search bar, there are two more callout boxes. The first callout box, located below the search bar, contains the text "If you know the publication title you can enter it and choose Publication title from the drop-down menu on the right" and has an arrow pointing to the second search box. The second callout box, located to the right of the second search box, contains the text "Select Document title from the drop-down list" and has an arrow pointing to the "Anywhere" dropdown menu. The page also shows the "Advanced Search" tab, the "Command Line" tab, and the "Recent searches" tab. The "Limit to:" section is set to "Full text" and "Peer reviewed". The "Publication date:" section is set to "Last 12 months". The "Search" button is visible at the bottom right.

From the results list, select the publication you want. To avoid retrieving more than one search result, you could have entered the publication title in the second search box above and then selected Publication title from the drop-down menu on the right.

The screenshot shows the ProQuest search results page. The search results are displayed in a list format. The first result is "Ford Motor Company; Ford Mustang Is Best - Selling Sports Coupe Globally; Customer Demand for Iconic Pony Car Continues to Rise" from "China Weekly News" (May 3, 2016). The second result is "Ford Mustang Is Best - Selling Sports Coupe Globally; Customer Demand for Iconic Pony Car Continues to Rise" from "News Bites - Automotive" (Melbourne) 21 Apr 2016. The third result is "Ford Mustang Is Best - Selling Sports Coupe Globally; Customer Demand for Iconic Pony Car Continues to Rise" from "Business Wire" (New York) 20 Apr 2016. The page also shows the "Related searches" section, the "Sort" button, and the "Narrow results" section.

If you only know the publication title and the date, you can use the Publication tab located at the top of the search page.

Enter the title of the publication in the search box.

The screenshot shows the ProQuest 'Publication Search: Full text only' interface. The search box contains 'business wire'. The results list two publications:
